One of my favorite Sunday traditions growing up was Sunday lunch with my grandparents. I still find myself missing those afternoons from time to time. I vividly remember my Grandma Belken's method of operation for Sunday lunch. She was a person that was known for not just delicious cooking but also cooking so much that there would always be leftovers. If there was just enough- that was too little. It was common for there to be an abundance of food left well into Sunday afternoon to snack on.

I often wonder what she would have thought about this Gospel- having just five loaves and two fish for thousands of people. Certainly, that would not have measured up to her standard for cooking, but that perhaps comes to show us the importance of this miracle: it was impossible so many could have eaten off such a very small amount. Yet, the Messiah was there, and through another miracle, proves without a doubt He is the one who is to come.

We all might wish we could see such dramatic miracles like the ones Jesus performed in that time. However, we have signs that, while they may not appear as dramatic from the outside, are far more powerful. Bread is transformed into our Savior. We are reconciled to the Father. Original sin is removed. We are healed in our souls. Many beautiful miracles are being performed in our midst- but the challenge is for us to believe as much as the crowd that day- and even more!

Perhaps my grandma would have thought that was a very small amount of food for such a crowd- and indeed it was. The difference was the Savior in their midst. He is still in our midst today, continuing to feed His people and reveal His greatness.

~Fr. Belken
